Pastors and their families are under a lot of pressure. Pastors appreciate encouragement from others who've been in the trenches. In ministry since 1962, H. B. London understands the needs these leaders encounter in our postmodern culture—on-the-job, in their marriages and with their families. His heart is to encourage pastors and instruct them in the practical pastoral issues they struggle with daily. Now the countless conference talks, e-mail devotions, and encouraging messages of H. B. London have been expanded and revised to create a timeless series of devotions for pastors. Topics like personal integrity, your family's call to ministry, and marriage growth are discussed from a caring mentor's perspective. The devotional also deals with leadership issues including staff relations, unity with your congregation, counseling families through grief, and many more.
